

Michael Mulder
12/15/23

Welcome To Your Farm

Welcome to your farm is a farming simulator game that takes the typical slow, relaxing feeling of most farming simulators and flips it on its head. Welcome to your farm is very fast paced as every 40 seconds $100 is deducted from your bank account, you have to race against time to make more than $100 every 40 second or you will lose the game. Nobody is expected to survive long on their first time and the game is designed to take multiple playthroughs before a player is able to last very long. The map itself is made up of three sections, each serving their own purpose: one section holds your farm, another has all the plots you can plant and harvest in, and finally the marketplace. You can do a few things with each plot, cultivate the land, plant seeds, fertilize, and harvest then repeat. You can only fertilize after a plot has seeds in them and a fertilized plot gives double the harvest yield. In order to get seeds and fertilizer you must purchase it from the marketplace. In the marketplace there are two buildings one where you can buy seeds and sell your harvest and another where you can buy fertilizer. Finally there is your barn in which you can increase the maximum amount of: seeds, wheat, fertilizer, and money you can hold at one time.

